School of Law

December 24, 2008

Note: The following bibliography was compiled from various indices, bibliographies, and other sources on recent books, law review articles, electronic or print services, and web sites that contain information about various aspects of electronic discovery or electronically stored information. Continuing education materials, articles in legal newspapers, and practitioner publications are generally excluded. A more complete bibliography of recent material will be published in the coming months in the Akron Law Review.

The bibliography is organized by material type: books, law review articles, electronic or print services, and then web sites. Material is then arranged by author in reverse chronological order with anonymous works presented first.
